

P/4071-3

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A middleware schema for describing message transactions is provided, including a structured framework of commands and attributes to be employed by technical personnel in order to develop messages that comply with a target API.

- 5 The invention applies the middleware schema to interpret the functionality of a source document, and generates high level program source code that formats data messages to comply with a target API.